HISTORY AND PURPOSE OF THE BILL

The proposed bill is similar to S. 2016 which was introduced in the Eightieth Congress but not acted upon in committee. The provisions of S. 2016, Eightieth Congress, were introduced into the 1948 selective-service bill by an amendment adopted on the floor of the Senate. The amendment, however, was removed in conference.

The proposed bill was introduced in the first session of the Eighty-first Congress as S. 273 and H. R. 5140. Hearings on S. 273 were held by the Senate Armed Services Committee. The Vice Chief of Staff of the Army testified in its support. The Senate committee rewrote the bill, reintroduced it as S. 2269, and recommended its enactment. It was passed by the Senate on August 27, 1949.

The purpose of the bill, as amended, is to permit the Secretary of the Army, with approval of the Secretary of State, to accept specially qualified aliens abroad for enlistment and reenlistment in the Regular Army. The enlistees must be between the ages of 18 and 35, unmarried, and without dependents. The enlistment period is restricted to not less than 5 years. The number in the program at any one time cannot exceed 2,500. The authority to accept such enlistments and reenlistments terminates June 30, 1953.

EXPLANATION OF THE BILL

Section 1 of the bill authorizes the Secretary of the Army to undertake the program referred to above. In several respects the provisions of this section, as reported to the House of Representatives, are more restrictive than those adopted by the Senate 2 years ago as an amendment to the then-proposed Selective Service Act of 1948. The proposal of 2 years ago would have permitted the enlistment of 25,000 aliens. S. 2269 as amended restricts the number to 2,500. Further, the present proposal requires that the alien shall be unmarried, and without dependents; it also provides that persons enlisted under this act shall be integrated into established Army units and not segregated into separate organizations for aliens; it also permits the acceptance of reenlistments, and requires that the enlistments and reenlistments under the program shall at all times be subject to the approval of the Secretary of State.

Section 2 specifies that any provisions of law which prohibit payment to any person not a citizen of the United States shall not apply to aliens who enlist under this authority, nor to their dependents or beneficiaries.

Section 3 suspends until June 30, 1953, the portion of the act of August 1, 1894, which provides that in time of peace no person, not a citizen of the United States, shall be accepted for first enlistment in the Army.

Section 4 accords to enlistees secured under this program the right to apply for American citizenship. Under section 324A of the Nationality Act of 1940, amended by the act of June 1, 1948, any person not a citizen who has served honorably in an active-duty status during World War I and World War II is permitted certain advantages in the matter of seeking his naturalization. Section 4 of S. 2269 would enable persons enlisted under the proposed legislation to obtain the benefits of section 324A, notwithstanding the fact that their service was not performed during World War I or World War II. These benefits include the provisions that such persons (1) may be naturalized regardless of age and notwithstanding section 303 of the act relative to racial limitations and section 325 of the act relative to enemy alienage; and (2) no declaration of intention, certificate of arrival, or period of residence in the United States or any State shall be required; and (3) the petition for naturalization may be filed in any court having naturalization jurisdiction regardless of the residence of the petitioner; and (4) the petitioner may be naturalized immediately if prior to the filing of the petition the petitioner and the required witnesses shall have appeared before and been examined by a representative of the services. This section also makes it clear that a person who is in the military service as a result of this program and who enters the United States or an outlying possession pursuant to military orders, shall, if otherwise qualified for citizenship, and after completion of five or more years of military service, or earlier if honorably discharged therefrom, be deemed to have been lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence, insofar as section 324A is concerned.

If this provision were not included, it would have been necessary for the individual to have been in the United States at the time of his enlistment, or to have been admitted for permanent residence as a quota immigrant.

Hon. Henry C. Lodge, United States Senator, and the Chief of Staff of the Army appeared before the committee in support of this proposal. The committee thoroughly considered from the testimony of the witnesses the possibility of this proposal resulting in an American "Foreign Legion," which was considered by the committee to be highly undesirable. Various considerations in the bill make this impossible. The number of original alien enlistees under the bill, as well as reenlistments of aliens, has been reduced from 25,000 to 2,500. Moreover, a committee amendment requires that they be integrated into existing Army units. Accordingly, the creation of an American "Foreign Legion" under the terms of this bill will be impossible.

What the proposal now amounts to is an initial attempt—in a very limited degree—to secure badly needed, highly specialized career military men from a heretofore unused source. If the program is found to be extremely successful, it can be enlarged at a later date. As indicated, the enlistees would be aliens at the time of their admission in the Army, but the principal inducement for their enlistment would be the privilege of acquiring United States citizenship after demonstrating their fitness by honorable service in our Armed Forces. They will not in any way be mercenaries. They are actually to be citizen candidates who, in return for the reward of United States citizenship, will offer their own quid pro quo in the form of honest, faithful service in the Army of the United States. Unlike a foreign legion, which is merely a business transaction, this plan will be a matter of give and take from both a tangible and intangible point of view. On our side we give the advantage of a better life with the ultimate reward of citizenship. The citizen candidate, on his part, gives us rare human talents in highly specialized fields that will certainly be of substantial value to our country. The committee emphasizes that personnel enlisted under this program must have excellent qualifications for military service and, particularly, they will be required to possess special technical capabilities.

The bill will afford our Government the opportunity of securing an appreciable number of badly needed, skilled military specialists and technicians who should make excellent American citizens after they have been carefully screened, selected, tried, and tested through service in our Armed Forces.

As indicated, the Department of the Army testified in support of the proposed legislation. In so testifying, the Army was representing the views of the Department of Defense as a whole. In reporting the bill to the House, there was no dissenting vote in the House Armed Services Committee.
